LOSE MAN POWER
Newer Weapons Given Little

Paris—How real is France's fear of another invasion by Germany? In America the average man is inclined to shrug his shoulders and say "There is not going to be another war for some time, because the people are too poor to fight again." But in Europe the average man has an altogether different idea of what constitutes the recuperative power of a nation.

If the fact that the whole quarrel about reparations is not a dispute over what each nation can pay, but what each wants to pay, for there seems to be general belief that in another 10 or possibly 15 years all the European powers will be back on their feet, economically speaking, and ready to go to war again.

So vivid is the thought of another war in 15 years that already the French are beginning to worry about the fact that when that time comes they will be outnumbered in man power by Germany almost two to one.

The French are doing everything they can to increase the birth rate, especially because they believe the heavy losses in man power during the war, families that would have been born and would have furnished troops for the years beginning 1930 or thereabouts will simply not exist for France. Even in 1914 the French birth rate was much lower than the German. Indeed, the French have been pushing legislation urging people to marry and have larger families. Reduced railroad fares, exemption

Marion Given Every Chance to Fight, Says Judge Grimm

Says Sarow Should Have Licked Marion

"What Ben should have done was to have thrashed Marion before the rest of us heard about it."

This was the statement of W. G. Sarow, brother of Benjamin Sarow, who, it is believed, has the support of the Rev. Leland L. Marion in Tuesday's Gazette, in which the latter accused the Sarow family of being Pro-German and charged the trouble was a plot ex-ecuted by them.

Sarow emphatically denied the family was Pro-German during the World war.

"We are of German descent and have high regard for the mother country, but we were loyal to America and the Allies, bought Liberty bonds and helped in other ways. All of us (there are eight brothers) are married and were exempt from service."

Mr. Sarow intimated the Rev. Mr. Marion will hear further from the Sarow family as the result of his statements, after a council of the brothers has been held.

"I hope so because Indiana can allow Marion and Mrs. Sarow to live together if it is true as the paper says that she has two husbands," said Mr. Sarow.

Liquor Is Moved; By Whose Order?

Elkhorn—Supposed to be held in the county jail in the custody of Coronel C. M. Rehm, pending hearing in the Walworth county circuit court, the $25,000 worth of choice liquor seized near Geneva Junction several months ago, and claimed by Rehm, was removed Wednesday afternoon from the county jail by Mr. Rehm. It was hauled away from the jail in a large truck. The destination of the truck is not known.

Reports in Elkhorn were that the attorney-general had ruled the liquor could not be held any longer.

Had Been Ordered Held.

Judge Edward Morrisey, Elkhorn, county attorney, said he must be held in the county jail until he had determined whether it was the property of the state of Frank Rehm, who claims it was stolen from his summer cottage on Lake Geneva. The liquor was found in a truck stalled in the mud and was seized by Sheriff Wylie.

Saturday, Simons and Walker, Racine attorneys, started a review against the Walworth county sheriff and Coronel Frank Mayer, Geneva Junction, the only man who could serve a warrant on the sheriff, during the liquor trial, the outcome of the suit, but it was held in the county jail in his custody. Removal was supervised by Mr. Rehm.

Deputy Attorney General of Wisconsin told the Gazette that no final decision of any kind affecting the liquor had been issued by the attorney-general's office.

WITH THE FARMERS

Farm Bureau Official Information

MILTON-EDGERTON C. T. A.

A slight decline was reported among the 380 cows tested in the Milton-Edgerton Cow Testing association, according to the June report. The average production was 27.1 pounds for the month and 45 pounds produced 40 or more pounds.

J. W. Jones' herd of registered Holsteins again top the averages and the high cow for the association, also in this herd, milked 67.1 pounds on her test day in the fourth month of lactation.

Only two cows were culled as "boarders" to be sold for beef, and four sold as dairy stock. The increased price of milk is causing the dairymen to feed better.

The report for June by Dale C. Merriam follows:

JOHN KELLY PLANS HOLSTEIN CIRCUS

Baraboo to be "Bull Capitol" on August 11—Holstein Field Notes.

All roads lead to Baraboo and the John Kelly farm in Sauk County, where a Wisconsin Holstein bull day will be held Saturday, Aug. 11. Mr. Kelley announces that Baraboo will be the "Capitol of the world" on this occasion, and that enthusiasm, inspiration and amusement are in store for those who accept the invitation to be his guests. Preliminary announcements say "something doing every minute a la circus style." Mr. Kelley is of Ringling Brothers circus fame.

Cheese Day Revived.

The annual cheese day of Green county at Monroe will be revived this fall after being discontinued during fall and winter. This always was one of the memorable events in dairying in Wisconsin. Tuesday, October 2, is the date selected. This year the event is coupled with the Green county Holstein sale which will be held Wednesday, October 3rd. Music by bands from all over the country, entertainment by Swiss, and a wild distribution of Swiss cheese sandwiches as only the Swiss make them, and opening of the $25,000 stock judging and sales pavilion on the Green county fair grounds are features in a real program of enjoyment.

Holstein Club Entertains.

For the first time since its inception, the famous Holstein Club in Holstein, Wisconsin, blood breeding in development in Wisconsin, will be honored with a national meeting and sale. Men of national fame will address the meeting on October 15, while breeders from all parts of the world are expected to be on hand when the sale opens on the 16th, when cattle from many of the foremost herds in America will be offered in public sale. Homestead breeding, now 25 years old, is in development, has representatives all over the world. Among the cattle in the Holstein county will be some of this strain, as shipments to every state in the Union and to New Zealand and Japan. Homestead breeding and Dodge county, Wisconsin, are inseparable, consequently, it is to be expected that Watertown should be termed the Homestead Capitol of America and honored with the first national meeting and sale of this strain.

Special Trials.
After touring the northwest for five weeks the Transcontinental Dairy Special returned to Wisconsin Friday, July 20. In all approximately 5,000 miles were covered. Eighty stops were made in cities and towns, and the stops largely in influential fields and farms, were impressed with the magnitude of the dairy industry. The train was put on by three railroads, a dozen agricultural colleges, six breed associations, and the U. S. department of agriculture. It carried a message of better dairying and a unusual effort on the part of the college students in cooperation with college and railroads to promote the use of better sires and dairy methods. Dairy cattle owners in Wisconsin should keenly appreciate of this big and well executed undertaking which reached the influential men in the important states in one of the great food producing sections of the United States.

District Meetings.
Holstein breeders from all over the state will assemble in eight districts and cities, and express to different districts their views. Special Oldham announces the meetings as follows: July 31, at Janesville; Aug. 1, at Dodgeville; Aug. 2, at Watertown;

DANIEL WEBSTER.

Nonpartisan Leaguers in Revolt.

The nonpartisan league is in bad straits in the land of its birth. Two hundred members met at Valley City, North Dakota, and agreed to form a new political party if a convention was not called by the executive committee before August 15th. The Nonpartisan league has fairly outlived itself. When it became of no particular account to the coterie of bosses who have dominated it from the beginning, it fell into pieces.

It deteriorated in Wisconsin by becoming a mere tail of a kite. It has been traveling in sad ways in North Dakota where all the financial schemes for aid to the farmer and wheat grower in one and several, have failed, and gone into bankruptcy. Ever since the Civil War there has been a group of clever politicians who have made somebody pay well for a good living just in the same manner as the salesman of blue sky stock shifts from one stock to another and works the same old list of customers. Farmers have been paying the dues and getting a receipt and that is about all unless we count a few unworkable and useless laws put there with loud trumpeting as salvation statutes. About the only time the people get a look-in is at election time when a new set of panaceas is trotted out and put on the candidates shelves.

The indictment of William Anderson, anti-saloon league head in New York state, does not follow that the prohibition law is either a failure or wrong in principle any more than putting a crooked prohibition agent in jail makes it appear that the 18th amendment is not in the constitution.

Individual Achievement.

America is a land where whatever we are has been made possible by individual achievement. The farmer is what he is in America because he has had full opportunity for the expression of his individuality. If it were not so we would have all farms equal only to the poorest in management and crops. No communal paradise will work for the highest there is when the individual is merged into the mass like the soul of the dead in the Buddhist belief of Nirvana, all in one great jelly cake. Thomas A. Edison by his inventions, it is said, has given employment to more than a million people. Most of it is clean, wholesome and well paid labor. It is hard to express in figures the importance of a genius like Edison. The greatest and finest example of socialistic paradise was the tribal relations of the American Indians. What belonged to one was the property of all in the primitive life. But nothing came of it all except a mere existence. If to exist is the end and aim of life then reversal to that condition is to be sought. If not and we are to carry out the highest duties which is set for mankind, the individual must have wide liberty for expression. There are a thousand others in the world, perhaps not so great in genius as Edison, who have contributed to the betterment of living under our system of making a sovereign citizen out of the individual.

One of the first steps to take in increasing the consumption of wheat is for Mrs. Newlywed to learn how to make biscuits instead of machine gun shot.

Fears the Farmer?

"Moses Fears the Farmer" is a headline in several papers. What does Mr. Moses fear? In the first place he lives so far down east that he does not know the farmer of Minnesota. Finer people live in no state than these men and women. They are good citizens, patriotic and sound in their love for America. At close range they have no delusions about the radicals themselves. It is anyone to blame it is the leadership that has permitted them to go astray after no constructive policy—only a chimera. They and others find it hard to tell just why farm products are low and labor is getting from $4 to $10 a day in trades and industries. Mr. Moses is a senator of the United States; instead of fearing the farmer he ought to be thinking a few rational thoughts about the farmer's problems.

The New York World wants the tariff taken off wheat in order that we may have cheaper flour and cheaper bread for the workingman. The Farmer-Labor party wants higher priced wheat when the leaders are talking to the farmers. How are the interests to be made consistent?

Senator Oscar Underwood says we made a mistake in not signing the Versailles treaty. Oscar should read the newspapers. For two years practically every signer of the treaty has been sorry his nation ratified it. It was conceived in greed and bitterness and reeks with injustice. Acceptance of the Versailles treaty at the time by the idealist Wilson, was in exchange for an unworkable League of Nations which existed by reason of the treaty which never has and never will be.

PEACE USE FOR WAR DEVICE

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Adaptation of instruments of war to the pursuits and arts of peace has been one of the immediate aftermaths of every great war. This has been especially true in the case of the late European conflict, which was in so many respects essentially a struggle of industry and science. Many inventions that were called forth by the exigencies of war have been discovered to have their peacetime uses, and of course it is well known that the amazing developments in aviation were due directly to the tremendous competition to excel in air fighting.

Latest of these adaptations is the use of the geophone in mining disasters and operations. This instrument was invented by the French during the war to make it possible to locate and determine the direction of the tunneling and mining which the Germans were carrying on constantly along the sectors where the opposing forces were entrenched for long periods.

American experts of the United States Army Engineers Corps, in the Bureau of Standards and in the Bureau of Mines have been experimenting with the instrument and have perfected improvements which it is said will make it invaluable in rescuing entombed miners, locating mine fire areas, reducing accidents through blasting, and in establishing roughly the relative positions of approaching tunnel headings.

Army engineers and the wizards of the Bureau of Standards are credited with having developed the form of the instrument by which it is now possible to hear long distances through rock and earth, while the engineers of the Bureau of Mines have succeeded in greatly increasing its sensitivity.

"The instrument is in principle a seismograph and is entirely mechanical in its action," said Alan Leighton, physicist of the Bureau of Mines, in explaining the development of the peacetime possibilities of the invention.

"The geophone consists of a flat iron ring about three and one-half inches in diameter and one-half inch in thickness. In the center of which is suspended a lead weight fastened with a single bolt through two metal discs or diaphragms. One of these diaphragms covers the top, the other the bottom, of the iron ring. There are two brass cap pieces, the top one having an opening in the center, to which is fastened a rubber tube leading to a stethoscope earpiece."

In operation the instrument is placed firmly upon the ground, and if there is any pounding or digging in the vicinity the case of the instrument will vibrate with the earth. The lead weight, because of its mass, remains comparatively motionless, however, since it is suspended between the elastic diaphragms. A relative motion between the diaphragms and the case is thus produced which alternately compresses and rarifies the air in the spaces between the cap pieces and the diaphragms, and the air waves thus set up within the instrument are transmitted to the observer's ears through the stethoscope apparatus.

It is customary to use the geophones in pairs, the observer connecting one to each of his ears. The direction of a sound from an observer can in this way be approximated with considerable accuracy on the binaural principle of direction determination.

The diaphragms of the original device were of mica, but it has been demonstrated that metal diaphragms are more sensitive and more durable. A nickel diaphragm twenty-five thousands of an inch in thickness is said to be the best.

"To give some idea of the sensitiveness of the instrument," said Mr. Leighton, "it may be said that under suitable conditions a single pound has been detected more than 3,000 feet through solid rock in a western metal mine; that the same pound has been detected 2,000 or more feet through coal 550 feet through mine 'cover' and about 300 feet through clay."

"External noises, such as those caused by light winds or machinery running nearby, greatly interfere with the successful operation of the instrument. The characteristic of the sounds are transmitted very accurately through the geophone. This means that one can easily judge the nature of the machine or instrument making the sound. Talking can be heard through an ordinary 55-foot coal pillar with about the clearness of the old-fashioned phonograph."

In disasters in which miners are entombed alive—and the history of coal mining in this country has many tragic pages of such accidents—the rescuers are frequently handicapped by the difficulty in locating the victims. Precious time and effort are wasted because of uncertainty as to where the rescue work can be directed most effectively, and in such emergencies the matter of hours or minutes may mean life or death to many men.

With the geophone it will be possible to locate the victims promptly and fairly accurately, if they are still alive. And when the instrument can be used within a relatively short distance of them it will even be possible to hear their voices and for them to direct the work of the rescuers to a certain extent.

Those who have not witnessed the tragedy of a group of women and children, around the pithead of a mine, some hysterical and others dumb with agony, as they wait through long hours to learn whether husbands and fathers are still alive and whether there is a chance of rescue, may not appreciate fully the possible value of this war instrument now turned to the uses of peace. Those familiar with such scenes, however, will understand.

In the way of preventing or minimizing accidents it may be said that the geophone, through its use in establishing the relative positions of approaching tunnel headings, may serve to prevent those disasters that result from blasting through unexpectedly.

Under exceptional conditions they have been of assistance in locating mine fire areas. Usually the sounds from such a fire are too weak to be transmitted to any great distance.

Very satisfactory results have been obtained in locating waterpipe leaks, and one mining company has reported success in locating leaks in compressed air lines buried along entries.

Geophones also can frequently be employed in determining the drift of chisel-drill holes, and experiments with diamond drilling seem to indicate that under certain conditions they would serve the same purpose with such drills. While it would not always be possible to follow the drift from the surface, it is certain that if the hole were being put down ahead of accessible workings the geophone might be useful.

carried out. Mr. Underwood will receive about as warm a welcome for that issue as he would in addressing an audience of Hottentots on the benefits of the Einstein theory.

The New York World wants the tariff taken off wheat in order that we may have cheaper flour and cheaper bread for the workingman. The Farmer-Labor party wants higher priced wheat when the leaders are talking to the farmers. How are the interests to be made consistent?

Senator Oscar Underwood says we made a mistake in not signing the Versailles treaty. Oscar should read the newspapers. For two years practically every signer of the treaty has been sorry his nation ratified it. It was conceived in greed and bitterness and reeks with injustice. Acceptance of the Versailles treaty at the time by the idealist Wilson, was in exchange for an unworkable League of Nations which existed by reason of the treaty which never has and never will be.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

FAILURE
I will not fail today.
I will not cry my burden is unfair,
Cast it aside and leave it lying there.
I will not say
Soft words of pity to myself, and whine
That others have an easier task than mine.

I will not fail today.
I will not mark this record white and new
By failing to do all that I can do.
Let come what may.
I'll do my best with what my hands shall find,
And passing, leave no vain regrets behind.

I will not fail today.
I will not play the trick or play the cheat;
I will not stain my duty with deceit.
Though rough the way
And heavy seem the burden I must bear,
I'll not begrudge to life these hours of care.

I will not fail today.
I may not come to dusk by glory crowned,
But I shall fight my battle, round by round,
And hope shall stay.
And night shall find me, as the day began,
Though not a victor, still no less a man.

Who's Who Today

MORTON D. HULL

When congress next convenes Morton D. Hull will be filling the chair in the house of representatives filled for years by the late Representative James R. Mann. Hull was elected from the Second Illinois district to succeed him.

The new senator was born in Chicago in 1907, educated in the Chicago public schools, later in Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N. H., and graduated from Harvard college in 1929, and from Harvard law school in 1932. He was admitted to the bar of Illinois the same year.

He served as a volunteer in the infantry in the World War.

Hull is president and has been active in the management of the Raymond Concrete Pipe Company.

He is chairman of the board of trustees of Meadville Theological school; Meadville, Pa.; vice president of the National Municipal League and vice president of the American Association for Labor Legislation and a member of the committee on legislation of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Hull carried through the house at Springfield this act requiring the state treasurer to turn over interest on state funds. This measure alone has saved many hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest to the people of the state of Illinois. He championed and secured the passage of the anti-loan shark bill.

The Riddle of the Spinning Wheel

By M. E. and T. W. HANSHEW

Being an Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective

Copyright, 1922, by Doubleday, Page & Co., and published, by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate of New York City.

SYNOPSIS.

The deadly efforts of the Caste Duggan seek help from Scotland Yard. Hamilton Cleek, under the name of "Deland," takes up the attempt to solve the mystery of the Spinning Wheel, which on occasions and without the aid of human hands starts running. Invariably a deadly affair follows. The head of the house, the old Captain, has a first wife, the daughter and a second wife, a French woman, and her son, Cyril. It is believed that the wife is dead, and that her son may be the heir of the estates. Cleek starts his investigations. He makes a number of acquaintances. He is an electrical expert. He has made his father angry by lighting the house with electricity and adding other modern improvements. He is attempting to have Ross dis-inherited and her own son, Cyril, made the heir. At a family gathering in an elder Duggan's home, the lights go out. Maude Duggan tells Cleek, (Deland) about it.

"And know you shall, old friend," said Cleek, straightening himself from his self-imposed task and giving his cravat a twirl with nimble fingers to its correct position once more. "It wasn't a bird's nest—not by a long chalk! More! A house a house not nest, I should say between you and me; but that's apart from the question. And what was miffed off the dove? The tragedy, either, Mr. Narkom? It was miffed after! Pretty strange, isn't it?"

"Yes, I thought you'd think so. Well, anyhow, I'm coming tonight to remove the 'muffing' object which the rest of the people are in bed, and I want you to help me by keeping on the watch-out, and that'll help matters."

So there's in the mystery, too, is he? Umm. A difficult subject to tackle, as well, on account of his silence. But he's told me something this day that has unravelled one portion of the riddle, at all events. And when I've unraveled the remainder, you shall hear what I know."

"Now for Dollons, and the Three Fishers. I'm anxious to hear that Crown and Anchor story from his own lips. And I've other work, for him. So come along!"

CHAPTER XV

Another Fly in the Web

It was a full hour by the clock when Captain Mac Donald, in the hands of his burly captor, and looking as furious as it is possible for a man to look in such circumstances, entered the library at Argon Castle, where already Mr. Narkom, Cleek's old friend, was waiting. Of that ill-assorted and tragic party were already assembled, and looking neither to right nor left, of him, pushed past Maude Duggan's departing fingers and went straight up to his man on sight.

"Look here!" he said angrily, as, hat in hand, he stood before Cleek, his countenance showing a little of what he had in mind.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Japan Rice. Wash one cup rice, boil tender, drain, add two eggs. Place in oven 15 minutes. Boil six eggs 15 minutes. Shallot and cut crosswise. Slice off bottom to make stand. Rub yolks of eggs with a little butter, chopped onion, salt and pepper and put into the whites. Unmold rice on platter, stand eggs on top and serve with a white sauce. Souffle. Cup milk, tablespoon butter, salt, pepper to taste, thicken with flour.

"Old French" Cake—One cup of sugar, one-half cup butter, three eggs, two cups of flour, two level tablespoons baking powder, three tablespoons of milk, one teaspoon mace, one cup shredded raisins. Mix together, add raisins, then add the eggs, and adding the sugar, and into this stir the eggs, then alternating the milk and flour into which has been sifted the baking powder. Add mace and raisins. This makes a thick batter and should be spread out in shallow pans to the depth of about an inch and baked in a medium oven. This mace gives it a delicious delicate taste.

Meat Loaf—Two pounds ground beef, one pound ground pork, two cups cracker crumbs, three eggs, one-half cup cream, salt and pepper to taste. Mix together, form into loaf, sprinkle with flour, put small pieces of butter or bacon on top and bake with tomato juice. Put two or three slices of onion in pan if desired and bake one and one-half hours.

ROBINS CAN LOSE TWO AND REMAIN ON TOP OF PILE

INDIFFERENCE causes many losses. Will it come the Lake Kashkawong Improvement Association to go by the Janesville Indians? Started by the Janesville Indians, chapter of the American Legion, was taken down and finally made law legalizing the killing of that body of water for carp and other rough fish. That was some time ago. The next step was a series of meetings to determine the methods to be followed in carrying out the project. A decision was reached and turned over to the state conservation commission for action. That is the last that has been heard of the matter.

THE JANESEVILLE club did not start this proposition with the idea that it was going to let it slide by the boards. The loss in game fishing to sportsmen of southern Wisconsin believed due to an overabundance of carp is too vital a matter which is expected. The "will" will wait just about as long for fishermen are patient fellows, but so long will be enough. Wrangling over who is going to get the most chance to make money from netting the carp is side-play and should not be permitted. The commercial side is perhaps a necessary evil as the quickest way to get rid of the objectionable "fishman." It must not be permitted to take first place.

SOME POLITICS have already crept into this situation. Sportsmen should be alive to the chances that the matter will be worked out in such a fashion that opening the lake to carp fishing will be with Fort, not with the Janesville Indians. Those who are in such a position will be those who accentuated the money in the game, will not work to rid the lake of the fish, but to make the carp fishing last as long as possible. Meantime no stone should be left unturned. If there are additional things that may be done to make game fishing and hunting better, more like the days of old, they should be discovered. Because it is summer time, the time should not be spent in fishing out what is there without further study of providing for the future.

Fans objected to decision when White Sox failed to left field in seventh inning. Walkers made effort to trip ball and argued eloquently when Nolin declared he had caught it on short hop. BRINGING UP FATHER

"LITTLE BILL" IS NO "SWEET WILLIAM"

Wm. M. Johnston
HE MUST BE CLASSED AS THE GREATEST SHARPSHOOTER IN THE GAME

Four years ago an English tennis expert named A. Wallis Meyers put himself down to his trusty typewriter and with the startling details of Norman Brooks, Wilding, Patterson and other stars of the British empire fresh in his mind, compiled a world's ranking of not celebrated in time. He must be classed as the greatest sharpshooter in the game. His placing is uncanny. Tilden himself will tell you.

Despite Johnston's size, he puts a world of power behind his drives when necessary. Francis Hunter of New Rochelle, the man Johnston defeated in the finals at Wimbledon a few weeks ago, has a weird drive, but right now Meyers' dope looks good. For Johnston stands without an equal or peer in the world. He holds by right of conquest, the world's tennis title. He succeeds Big Bill Tilden.

Whereas Celie was as nearly correct in his views as was Mr. Meyers. Johnston helped put America in greatest of the U. S. stars ever since he first won the national title, eight years ago.

He's known affectionately as "Little Bill" to distinguish him from "Big Bill" Tilden. When he puts his size in length and arms, he makes up in time. He must be classed as the most prizewinning trophy outside the national Longwood Bowl, one of the most famous Irish trophies, finished the qualifying rounds only two strokes behind Sweetser.

Although the pairing was made on the numerical system on the basis of the qualifying scores, most of the favorites landed in the upper half of the chart.

Sweetser and Evans if they win their matches through the earlier rounds, will meet in the semi-finals.

Captain Fred Carter of Chicago, the most Irish champion, finished the qualifying rounds only two strokes behind Sweetser.

Chick Evans, defending champion defeated James Ward of Kansas City, 5 and 4. Evans was out in 35, two under par, and had a lead enough to win without further effort.

Cleveland — In the first match of the first round in the western golf championship, Wednesday, the New York medalist, defeated Leonard Martin, a youthful New Yorker, 5-4, in 18 holes. The national champion was like a machine on the first nine, accumulating nine fours for a 26, while Martin was erratic, taking 41.

Sweetser let up on the other five holes, but Martin could not tighten his game.

Sweetser, as a result of his victory, meets Frank Godchaux of New Orleans in the afternoon round, the southern star having defeated Kenneth Hart of Chicago, western champion, 5 and 3, by far superior golf.

Dexter Cummings, of Chicago took 20 holes to oust Harold Weber of Toledo, after trudging most of the way. Weber finally squared the match at the 18th green. Both were erratic on the 19th, taking five each. Weber hooked to the woods on the 20th and took two to get out, taking six for the hole to Cummings' five.

Cleveland — Thirty-two golfers representing nearly every part of the United States, and including the national champion, Jess Sweetser, who was medalist of the qualifiers, with 143, and Chick Evans, defending champion, Wednesday played the first round of the 18-hole at the Mayfield Country club.

Although the pairing was made on the numerical system on the basis of the qualifying scores, most of the favorites landed in the upper half of the chart.
